

Anna McDermott-Vitak

VP, Corporate Development and Administration
Association for Accessible Medicines (AAM)

Anna McDermott-Vitak is vice president, corporate development and administration of the Association for Accessible Medicines (AAM), formerly the Generic Pharmaceutical Association. In this role Ms. McDermott-Vitak is responsible leading and managing AAM's membership efforts implementing a more comprehensive recruitment strategy. She is also driving operational improvement by increasing the alignment between issue prioritization and the budgeting process, maximizing IT functionality and human resources capabilities.

Before joining AAM, McDermott Vitak had over two decades of experience in the biotechnology industry with experience in all phase of product development, general management, investor relations and global government affairs for Amgen and Centocor.

Ms. McDermott-Vitak earned her bachelor's degree in biology and a master's of business administration from LaSalle University.